DR. LORIMER IS GRANTED LL.D. DEGREE

Editor-in-Chief of Saturday
Evening Post

WIDE EXPERIENCE

Only Seven Journalists Previously Accorded This Honor
by McGill

Dr. George Horace Lorimer, Editor-in-Chief of the Saturday Evening Post, has accepted an invitation to be present at the McGill Convocation to be held during the coming spring when the honorary degree of LL.D. will be conferred upon him.

The degree was offered partly in recognition of his outstanding merit as a journalist and author, but more especially in appreciation of his earnest efforts to promote friendship and good feeling between the English-speaking nations of the world. Among the honors he has already received is the appointment of Chevalier de Legion d'honneur.

Dr. Lorimer was born in Louisville, Kentucky, on October 6th, 1868, and received his early education at Mosely High School, Chicago. Later he took a college course at Yale, where he was granted his Litt. D. In 1899, he became the Editor-in-Chief of the Saturday Evening Post, and since that date has published many books, chief of whom are "Letters of a Self-made Merchant to His Son," 1902; "Old Gorge Graham," 1904; "The False Gods," 1906; "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," 1908. He now lives in Wyndol, Pa., but his office is in the Curtis Publishing Co. Building, Philadelphia.

McGill rarely has awarded the degree of LL.D. to journalists, but in the past, Rudyard Kipling, 1899; W. S. Fielding, 1906; and J. S. McEwen, 1921, have accepted the honor, as have four members of the Imperial Press Conference who visited Canada, in July, 1920. These latter were Viscount Burnham, the proprietor of the London Daily Telegraph and President of the Empire Press Union; Mr. R. S. W. Jackson, of the Rand Daily Mail and the Sunday Times of Johannesburg; the chairman of the South African delegation, Mr. T. W. Gey, editor, and part owner; the chairman of the New Zealand delegation and Sir Harry Brittain, connected with the London Evening Standard and a director of the Sphere and Tatler.

Thus Dr. Lorimer will follow in the wake of a large number of well-known men of letters, and will take his place in the ranks of McGill's honored guests.

MEDICALS CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

Yearly Essay Competition
To Close Tuesday Next

Election activities and the closing of the Medical Essay competition for the best essay, are the main items on the agenda of the Medical Undergraduate Society for the coming week.

Tuesday, February 26th, is declared as the date on or before which all essays intended for the yearly prize competition are to be handed to the President, Secretary or Treasurer of the Society.

With the approach of March, the attention of members of the Medical Society is again directed to the coming elections of officers, nominations for which must be in the hands of the Secretary on or before March 10th. These nominations must be made in writing and must be signed by at least ten medical undergraduates. The President, Vice-President, and Case-Reporter are to be elected from the incoming six-year (present fifth year) of the six-year course while the Treasurer and Councillor are to be elected from the incoming fifth year; the Secretary from the incoming fourth year and the Assistant Secretary from the incoming third year.

Balloting for these elections will take place on the twenty-fourth of March. The honorary officers will be elected at the Annual Meeting of the Society on March 31st.

Some self-made men might be more careful in collecting material.

R.V.C. TO FEATURE IN THEATRE NIGHT

Everything Set for General
Meeting on Monday

The progress of the preparations for the Theatre Night are proceeding at a very rapid rate, and all the faculties are getting ready for the general meeting which is taking place on Monday. At this meeting the representatives from the various convocations will be on hand, and they will discuss the prospects for the final theatrical event of importance in the University session. Before the Theatre Night itself there will be the annual series of plays given by the Faculty at the Royal Victoria College on the eighth of next month. Last year, it will be remembered, these plays were of a very high order, and those who attended were given an evening's entertainment which provided them with much enjoyment.

Yesterday a meeting of the class representatives was held at the R. V. C., and although nothing definite was decided upon, it was evident that the convocations do not intend to be left behind in this year's production. It is quite possible that their contribution may take somewhat the same form as it did last year, and at that time they figured prominently on the programme.

The other faculties have not been saying much about the progress that they have been making, but it is a well-known fact that the Commerce students, under the able direction of Blake Wilson, will provide merriment for the onlookers. Medicine can always be counted upon to produce a playlet in an acceptable form, and this season there will be no exception to this rule. To state anything definite for the other organizations is impossible at the present time, but it is certain that they will all take their parts in the approved fashion.

INCOMPLETE BILLIARD TOURNAMENT RESULTS

The first round of the Billiard Tournament now being held in the Union is almost completed. Last night, the following results were announced, with the scores of the various players:
J. Packham 197 vs. B. Leach 200
P. L. Fisher 172 vs. B. Steacie 200
G. L. Vickerson 190 vs. H. Glickman 200
L. Lannoy 166 vs. P. T. Webb 200
J. R. Robertson 200 vs. B. D. Pierce 148
L. H. Gordon vs. P. Wickman
J. C. Potter 166 vs. R. H. Duvall 200
B. L. Boulton vs. E.

Dance Proclaimed an Unqualified
Success

LAST THIS YEAR

Mrs. Ira McKay and Mrs.
Stuart Forbes Hostesses

Smiles and contagious good cheer, that, just about summarizes the penetrating spirit which radiated from the ball-room last night on the occasion of the final informal dance of the academic year; and in true optimistic student fashion, the regretful fact that the dance was the last of the series of charming social evenings, was not permitted to intrude upon the evening's pleasure until the very last moments, when the dying strains of music brought home to the happy dancers the only sad feature of an otherwise perfect evening.

Whirling and gliding in an atmosphere of congeniality framed by the spacious ball-room, softly lighted by the shaded lamps, and as if taking their cue from the beaming countenance of the mirthful moon, the fortunate subscribers to the dance filled the ball-room to overflowing, and made the most of Glenn Adney's offering of popular music.

The beautiful frocks of their partners contrasted pleasantly in their gay colors with the more sombre attire of the men; and the contrast found a complement in the red and white decorated tables spread in the two dining halls and even in the rotunda. In this manner were all the guests comfortably accommodated at one sitting, doing away with the aggravating confusion of a continuous programme. Cut flowers enhanced the decorative scheme of the tables at which dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. Ira A. McKay and Mrs. Stuart Forbes were the hostesses, and among those present were:

PHIPPS GIVES TALK TO ELECTRIC CLUB

Power Plant Construction at La Gabelle

"Construction Work on the La Gabelle Power Development" was the subject on which C. Phipps gave a most interesting talk to the Electrical Club at their regular meeting at five yesterday afternoon.

A good part of the membership was present and the chair was occupied by McCracken, Science '21. Phipps, first outlined with the aid of a number of maps, the layout of the plant giving especial attention to the very expensive temporary dams that had to be constructed, giving some idea of the immensity of the preliminary expenses that may enter into an enterprise of this type. After giving an idea of the layout of the plant he proceeded to show a most interesting set of pictures of construction work in progress. All the pictures were good and served to clear up many of the points that have been more or less indistinctly remembered from the various lectures where such things as "draft tubes," "hydrocones" and the like have been referred to.

The discussion was rather short owing to lack of time and at the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Fred Howes.

The Electrical Club will hold a luncheon on Monday next at 1 P.M. The speaker will be Mr. Gregory of the Shawinigan Company. The tickets for this luncheon are 70c each. The details will be announced in Monday's "Daily."

MERE PLAYERS

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players."
So thought Shakespeare, and expressed his idea in the words of the melancholy Jaques. And though the time at which the words were written down is well-nigh buried in the distant past, still the thought has something in it of value to university men and women.

This great centre of learning is a stage, and the undergraduates are the players. They appear first upon the scene as untrained Freshmen, and as such they are not qualified to play any important parts. Those among them who show ability as actors, may have a few lines allotted to them in the pageant, but the majority are discovered only in the mob scenes. Later, when they are numbered with the Sophomores, many find roles as understudies for the leading players. For such, there are numerous chances to demonstrate their talent, although the opportunities are ignored by far too many.

From the ranks of the Juniors and Seniors are chosen all who will take a leading part in the management and staging of the production. Some care for the stage properties, others have charge of activities which are carried on to maintain the physical well-being of the company, while still others provide for the recreation of the actors.

We could digress at great length upon the similarities between the university and a stage, but that would be of little further avail. Let us look rather at those who have played their parts, and have passed through the Graduation Exit to a Greater Stage—the World. There, by virtue of their experience, the will be considered talented artists, and will be expected to act with distinction. Leading places on the programme have been reserved for them, and they have chances of success which comparatively few enjoy. If they fail, it will be because they neglected to take advantage of the opportunities offered them on the University-stage, and they will be a discredit to that training-school for world actors.

Thus, though we are destined to be "mere players," let us remember that there are many kinds of players. And let us rehearse conscientiously, that whatever parts we are allotted on the Great Stage we may play them well.

THE LAST INFORMAL

As we go to press to-night, a merry throng is dancing in the Union Ball-room to the bewitching tunes of Glenn Adney's famous orchestra. They are dancing away the last hours of the last informal of the present session, and with thoughts of mingled regret and pleasure they look back over the social season of the University, which has now come very nearly to a close. We cannot imagine how they can think of it as anything else but a successful series of pleasant events, for it has been under the supervision of a body of them—the Union House Committee—who have spared no efforts in their undertakings.

With the informals a thing of the past, the next and final dance will be the Alma Mater, which is a scant three weeks away. We trust that it will be of such a nature as to provide a fitting close to the round of gaiety that is of annual occurrence at McGill.

CONDENSED COMMENT

Queen's and McGill will meet for the final time on the ice this season to-night at the Arena. This is the last game in the intercollegiate schedule and though both teams are out of the running for the honours the contest should be a thriller. The Kingston sextette won on the home ice but they will probably have a lot of trouble in repeating the performance. And there is a strong possibility that they will not be able to do so. The game will be a good one to watch and McGill's hockey representatives will appreciate it if the undergraduate body gives good support this evening.

Rochester's Greatest Tradition

Rochester's greatest tradition is the one least heard of. It is the one observance and enforcement of which is the duty of each individual in the college.

This greatest tradition adds most to our college spirit and is at the same time an instance of such spirit. It should be the first to be enforced.

It is the same by day or night. It is observed alike by freshman, sophomore, junior and senior. It is the perfect and common expression of the fellowship of student for student. It links the student with the professor. It is Christian in essence. Like a gift, it gives pleasure to both its recipient and him who practices it. It gives the momentum of student approval as it is practiced. It is expressive, not repressive. It has stood at the head of Rochester traditions for many years.

When you meet a fellow student on or off the campus, do you say "Hello"?

—The Technique

Professor (in lecture): "These are not my own figures, young gentlemen. They are the figures of a man who knows what he is talking about."

"PUSSYFOOT" AT PRINCETON

Speaking last night before an audience of more than 400 undergraduates and townspeople at the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton, William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson delivered an exhortation for world prohibition in which he declared that the United States could never expect 100 per cent abstinence until the nations of the world were lined up with her in the cause. Choosing as his topic, "The Cross and the Crescent," Mr. Johnson pointed out the important part religion has played in the campaign, as well as the present co-operation between the Christian and the Mohammedan faiths in the Far East.

Rapid Spread of Prohibition

The lecturer continued, stating that the prohibition movement had spread faster than any similar program in the world's history. Starting with a few cases of "local option" in towns, counties, and states of the Union, some 50 years ago, a remarkable interest was shown. In the period up to the time of the Great War the project was embraced by some 12,000 towns, and 32 states. The problem proved to be one that could not be controlled by any local means, as the liquor interests always managed to evade the laws for the benefit of the few, regardless of the wishes of the majority.

Following the will of the majority, the present 13th Amendment was adopted. But just as "local option" proved inadequate for the small communities, so the Prohibition Amendment remains insufficient for the country at large. The only measure that will prevent the flooding of America with foreign liquor will be universal prohibition, a project which is well on its way to establishment. Prominent men in England, such as Lloyd George, have declared that if America could prove her system a success, the British Empire would be dry within ten years.

The courageous action of America in introducing Prohibition to the Christian world has led many smaller countries to take the initial step. Since 1913 Finland, Norway, parts of Canada, two states of Mexico, five divisions of Imperial India have adopted the measure. Japan and Poland have recently taken steps to follow, and in Sweden 950,000 voters last year voted on the question with a resulting defeat by a margin of only some few hundreds. There are 37 Dry representatives in the French Chamber of Deputies, and in Germany 460,000 of the middle classes filed a petition requesting a vote on prohibition.

Liquor Propaganda

The liquor interests abroad have spread stories of the inefficiencies and impossibilities of the American system, many of which are believed. But regardless of what is said by scoundrels, the 13th Amendment is now, after only four years of existence, much more effective than the licensing law was during 100 years. But the question is still to be grappled with in its foreign aspects, and it is here that co-operation between the world religions, which was started and fostered by the passing of the Prohibition law in the United States will be of most avail.

There are three important reasons for the rapid spread of the Moslem faith among the pagans of Africa during the last 50 years: First, the simple character of the faith, which the ignorant savages could easily understand; second, the low ethical standards of this religion, which made it easier for the aborigines to live up to; and third, the total abstinence demanded by this religion, which had an especial appeal to the blacks. In the pagan districts of South Africa the Christian and Moslem missionaries engage in bitter strife over the conversion of natives to their respective religions, but they co-operate in the fight against liquor.

The first act of Turkey, the only independent nation of the Moslem faith, after freeing herself from the protection of the European powers, was to pass a prohibition law. Many things can be said to the disadvantage of Turkey, but this act certainly speaks in her favor. Egypt, also, is strongly supporting prohibition and hopes to pass a law soon prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquors.

In closing his address, Mr. Johnson summed up the influence of the two most widespread religions of the world, Christianity and Mohammedanism in advancing prohibition. "For 3,000 years Mohammedanism has opposed the drinking of intoxicating liquors. Now America, the greatest Christian nation, has joined in this movement and the other nations are beginning to follow her lead. As a result of America's action, she is now the most respected nation among all the countries of the world. If every good man and woman of this country put their shoulders to the wheel, in a few years we will see universal prohibition."

MCGILL POLO TEAM INVADE QUEEN CITY

Return Game With Varsity Tonight in Hart House Tank
GOOD CONDITION
Red and White Mermen Start Game With Nine Point Lead

"We are going down to Toronto to do our best, beyond that I would not like to prophesy anything about the game," said Coach Vernot last night before the water polo team departed to Toronto for their return game with Varsity. Coach Vernot and his eight men were in the best of spirits at the Bonaventure Station at 10.30 o'clock last night—and well they might be, for they are starting the game to-morrow night in Toronto with a 9 point lead as a result of their win here two weeks ago.

The different feature in the game will be the Varsity tank which is one of the best in Canada and vastly superior to any in Montreal. The pool in Hart House is deep at both ends and although not much longer it is at least ten feet wider than any the Red and White mermen have been in this year. Whether this will be an advantage or a disadvantage remains to be seen.

Although the McGill men won an easy victory here two weeks ago they do not anticipate a walkover in the Queen City. For one thing the Varsity men will be in their own tank and will have their own crowd to cheer them on which is a decided advantage. Then there is no doubt that the Blue and White aggregation have learned more about the game and the style of the McGill players since they last played. Consequently Ross and Vernot will be watched more closely than ever.

To go into the personnel of the players: Jim Ross captain and forward has played on the team for the past four years. He is a fast swimmer and a pretty player and can shoot from almost any position. In the first game Ross scored four of McGill's nine goals. No write-up on water-polo would be complete without the mention of George Vernot star player of the team and picked as Canada's representative in the Olympic Swimming contests. George is fast in the water, a hard shot and a very hard man to check effectively. The Blue and White swimmer that marks George will have his hands full. Vickerson and Moore will be the other two on the attacking line for McGill. Vick has been playing polo since he came to college and works in well on the combination while Moore excels in back checking. With these men on the line-up the Toronto defense will need to be on the "qui vive" all the time.

The Red and White defense are as strong as ever with Pop Anson and Forsythe checking and Jardine in the nets. Many a goal has been saved by the Anson-Forsythe combination and it will have to be a shot above the average to fool Jardine.

The Varsity sextette have only three of last year's men on their team but the new men showed flashes of speed and form here that might tell in the battle to-night. Latchford, Wood and Keefler are the mainstays of the Varsity mermen and are all tricky players. In all probability the Toronto line-up will be the same as in the last game.

The McGill boys are in the pink of condition although one or two have had slight colds they have recovered and will go into the game to-night with the determination to bring another championship to McGill.

DO THEY READ?

On alleged investigation into the reading of young people by a college professor here in Chicago was widely reported the other day.

According to the findings, the average young man reads only twelve novels before going to college, and only four of those were "good literature."

Now the truth of the report is questioned. But it at least raises the question: What do our young men read?

There are no acceptable authorities on the subject; but, according to such evidence as can be gathered from schools and the public library, they read just about the same sort of books they did a generation ago, only many many more of them.

The widely heralded "sex fiction" of which we hear so much seems to be read much more by the middle-aged than by the young. Stories of adventure remain their great popularity. The Victorian fiction—Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot—sells about as it used to, that is to say, not so widely in proportion to population. A much greater proportion of books for very young children are sold; fewer of those which combine history with fiction, more of those which combine science or mechanics with fiction.

The conclusion seems to be on the whole that our school children in the cities have not been lured away from reading by the tremendous popularity of the screen. When a story is filmed its sales in book form immediately jump.

McGill Determined to Overcome Dartmouth's Big Lead

The Winter Sports Carnival will be held on Friday and Saturday of next week, when teams from Dartmouth and possibly from Williams, New Hampshire State and other colleges will meet the McGill Ski and Snowshoe Club.

The points for all events except the ski dash will be five for first place, three for second and one for third. In the ski dash however, the points will be two and a half, one and a half, and one-half for first, second and third positions respectively. On Friday afternoon the ski proficiency, ski cross-country and snowshoe cross-country competitions will be contested near the Park Slide, while the ski and snowshoe dashes and Relay Race will be held on the campus on Saturday morning. The final events of the meet, the ski jumping competition, will take place on the Cote des Neiges hill on Saturday afternoon.

Conditions have been ideal during the last few days for practice, and the McGill representatives, determined to win the championship, have worked hard to perfect their training. After the meeting at Dartmouth two weeks ago, the final score stood Dartmouth, 34 1-2; McGill, 15; and New Hampshire S. This is a substantial lead and McGill can and will try to overcome it. Last year it will be remembered, Dartmouth established a good lead at home, but the Red and White men successfully overcame this advantage when the second section of the Carnival was held in Montreal.

WESTERN STUDENTS MEET AT LUNCHEON

The first Western Club luncheon of the year is being held at 1 o'clock today at the Union. The Club has planned for some time to have this luncheon, when some prominent man from the West could be present. Dr. Arbuckle, a well-known physician from Vernon B. C., is in Montreal at present, on his way to Europe, to take up special work, and the little dinner is held in his honour.

The dinner is not strictly a Club affair. The real purpose of the event is to draw together students from the West, whether they are Club members or not. The executive has extended an invitation to all college men from across the prairies to come to the luncheon, have a chat, and become acquainted with other Westerners.

The programme appears very attractive. An exceptionally good bill-of-fare is being provided, in the Grill Room, by the Cafeteria staff, for a moderate price. Music will be furnished during the dinner by a four-piece orchestra. Dr. Arbuckle will afterwards say a few words to the Westerners. All those who come to the luncheon are thus assured of a most delightful time.

PITY THE PROF.

In this day and age when youth is inclined to be slightly selfish and considers itself oppressed and burdened down with work passed out seemingly without end by those hard taskmasters, the members of the faculty, we would like to suggest this query, "What of the poor prof.?"

The members of the instructional force, after all, don't have quite such an easy life as the average student might think. They must, first of all, get up for 8 o'clock on these zero mornings just as often — and usually more so — as students. Class-cutting, which to the student means perhaps a lower grade or a great fineness in bluffing, is forbidden to the faculty. An instructor or professor who cut classes three days hand-running, unless he was ill or had some other excellent and irrefragable reason, quite probably would be severed from his position.

And then, these assignments. It sometimes seems terrible the way the profs ask for reports, theses, themes, and all that sort of thing. Yet the profs have to read and grade 30 or 40 papers for every one a student turns in. They are forced to study every passage assigned for students to learn the evening electricity in mastering. And really, they must be quite well informed on their subject, or they couldn't teach it. That takes some work.

The profs, on the whole, are paid much less for their services than other men of much less education and ability. Their meager salaries are even further lowered by the ravages of the income tax. They must be continually well dressed, to keep the respect of the students in their classes.

business; but the sales of books, and the demand for books from public libraries, have both increased in the last quarter of a century out of all proportion to the increase in population.

FIRST EVENTS OF WICKSTEED COMPETITION

Annual Gymnastic Display Held Yesterday at M.H.S.
DARING "STUNTS"

Delahay Outstanding—Finals Today at 2 p.m.

The first events of the Wicksteed Gymnastic Competition, staged last evening in the M. H. S. Gym, were a decided success from start to finish. Every man showed up well and there was little to choose between them. They went through their different movements with that grace and poise which comes from long and steady practice and well earned the applause from the small gallery present.

The twelve men who took part were divided into two groups and were sent through their stunts alternately. J. R. Delahay was the outstanding man, and is at present in first place for the medal. Delahay is a past master on the bars and held the spectators spell-bound during his voluntaries both on the parallel and horizontal bars. He combined daring with grace and his certainty in every movement was apparent. On the bars he lost only six points out of a possible hundred.

J. Ambrose and F. Consiglio are running very close to Delahay. Ambrose excelled in the dances and drill scoring ninety points in these two events. He gave a splendid exhibition in the drill, keeping almost perfect time and balancing well. On the horizontal bar he also showed up well going through the set and voluntary exercises with a finish that was outstanding. Consiglio was in everything and although he did not excel in any one thing is very near to Delahay and Ambrose in total score. On the mats Consiglio gave a very pretty exhibition of a back air spring in one of his voluntaries and was loudly applauded.

The competition was started with the dances. These consisted of four movements with a slight rest between each. The contestants had little difficulty in performing these although one or two lost the time. The drills were also run through in quick fashion and were very pretty to watch. The bars were got out next, one group working on the horizontal while the others started on the parallels. The exercises consisted of two set ones and two voluntary.

The set exercises presented no trouble and were gone through with the certainty of practice. In the voluntaries however some very good exhibitions were seen. These were performed with daring and combined an amazing variety of stunts. Delahay's voluntaries on both bars being excellent showing of gymnastic ability, while Gill was applauded for his performance on the parallels. Only one mishap marred these exhibitions when Baxter, trying to do a long swing on the high bar caught his feet on turning and fell heavily. Fortunately he was unhurt and able to continue.

On the horse and mat, excellent exhibitions of poise and tumbling were seen as the competitor twisted over and around the horse or rolling over and turning on the mat. Delahay showed up well on the mats although in trying an air spring he landed rather badly.

As everyone knows, or rather should know, there are three sections of the Wicksteed Gymnastic Competition. For the high point winner of the entrants from the graduating classes there is the Wicksteed silver medal as an award and also a small "M". In the Intermediate years the Wicksteed bronze medal is offered while the winner of the Freshman competitors Dr. Harvey has presented a silver cup.

Ambrose is the only entry from the graduating classes this year which is a very poor showing for '24 students. However it would require a good man to beat Ambrose who at the present time stands second in total scores. Delahay is now at the top of the Intermediate competitors and looks like a winner. McKyes of Science '25 was well up in the scoring column when the bars were finished but owing to a torn ligament in his shoulder was forced to withdraw. There are only three freshman entered and of these it appears to be a race between Racey Science '27 and Gordon. Both of these men have been showing good work on the floor and deserve much credit for their work. Racey is now leading by a scant two points.

The remaining events will take place at 2.00 p.m. this afternoon. They consist of the fence vault, standing hop step and jump, and potato race. The judges last evening were Dr. T. W. Harvey, Dr. A. S. Lamb, Mr. T. M. Van Wagner, Mr. Wilfred Werry, Mr. G. A. Holland. For this afternoon the officials will be: B. C. Amaron, Wilfred Werry and G. A. Holland.

The team that will represent McGill against Westmount on March 1st will be announced this afternoon. The following is the individual score up to date. The score is out of a possible 400 points.

CO-EDS WILL PLAY IMPORTANT GAME

Meet M.S.P.E. on Hollow Rink This Afternoon

At three o'clock this afternoon on the Hollow Rink the M.S.P.E. and R.V.C. hockey teams will meet in a League Match. The annual game between the Physical Eds. and the College is always a thrilling one from start to finish, and its result often decides the championship of the City League. This may not prove the case this year as the Y.V.C.A. have entered a very strong team which has already tied one game with the M.S.P.E. Last year R.V.C. and the M.S.P.E. played off for the championship, and after the first play-off had resulted in a draw, the second game gave the laurels to the M.S.P.E.

The game today promises to be a hard battle as a great deal of friendly rivalry exists between the teams. Both have been practicing hard and are in excellent condition, so that the outcome is very undecided. In League matches so far the M.S.P.E. have played three games, won two and tied one, while R.V.C. has played two and won two. The standing of the two teams in the league are thus equally good.

In form however, the teams differ widely. The Physical Eds. are the better skaters and do their opposition in speed and endurance. The R.V.C. on the other hand play a fair combination game and check well. R.V.C. is fortunate in possessing in Miss Backen, a splendid goal-keeper, while the brilliant stick-handling and spectacular shooting of Miss Roberts the School's star centre, always prove a great menace to the opposing team.

This will be one of the season's best games and it is hoped that a large number of rooters will turn out to support their players.

The probable line up will be as follows.

R.V.C.	Goal	M.S.P.E.
E. Easken		N. McTiggart
C. Robertson		E. Clarkson
L. Bingham		M. Robertson
F. Stocking		H. Roberts
D. Hutchison		J. Plumtree
R. Grant		D. MacArthur
R. Turley		P. Turley
E. Hutchison		P. Prouse
M. Burland		G. Farlinger

If one is a tooth and the whole set are teeth.

Why shouldn't the plural of both be called beeth?

If the singular is this and the plural is these.

Should the plural of kiss be nicknamed kesse?

GREAT FIGHT EXPECTED IN BASKETBALL

Seniors Meet Queen's Squad at M.A.A.A. Gym
OUT TO WIN

Intermediates "A" Play Westmount in Opening Encounter This Afternoon

Every man on the Red and White senior basketball team is reported in fine shape and ready to meet Queen's this afternoon at the M. A. A. A. Gym.

The whole squad is going into this, their last regular game of the season, fiercely determined to overcome the Tri-colour and fight their way into the winning column of the intercollegiate standings. On the other hand, Queen's have to win this afternoon if they are to have a chance at the championship. By triumphing over the Red and White they will draw up alongside Varsity in first place and gain the right to play-off with the Toronto squad for premier honours.

Coach Van Wagner will start the same team that took the floor last week in Kingston. The McGill quintette is a strong one which has not been going at its best in the league games to date. This afternoon, playing on a home floor, the Red and White have a last chance to retrieve past losses, and every man is going out to win. The whole team is full of fight and determined that the famous rush of the Tri-colour shall be broken and that McGill shall triumph.

The veteran basket-getter, Mendelsolm, will lead the Red and White attack while beside him will be Philpotts, who played his first senior game in Kingston and whose aggressiveness has been a strong addition to the team. The famous Bozo Manson will of course start at centre. Quackenbush and Blumenstein, who, since injuries have caused the withdrawal of Amaron and Hilton from the senior line-up, have borne the brunt of the defence for McGill, will be the Red and White guards. Bones Little, Boucher and Brown are the subs.

The Kingston outfit's best player is probably the great forward and captain, Haslam. Banking close to him is the other Tri-colour forward, Jones, and the elongated centre man, Hunter, while Hannon and Thomas are a strong defensive pair.

With these two great quintettes each determined to win, to-day's encounter should be a real battle right to the final whistle. Mr. Manley will referee.

Asper's orchestra will be on hand and these famous jazz artists will live things up throughout the afternoon.

Rivaling the senior fixture in interest and thrills should be the Intermediates—Westmount game. The Intermediates "A" have developed

TWO GOOD GAMES OF BASKETBALL TONIGHT

Spectators will see an exhibition of good basketball in the two important games to be played tonight in Molson's Hall.

The Junior Basketball team meets the Excelsiors at 8 o'clock. Following this at 9 o'clock will be the clash between the Intermediate B team and the National A. A. A.

Both these teams have strong line-ups, their men are in their best condition, and fast games may be expected. The teams have played close games all through the season, and while exhibiting consistently good basketball, have steadily improved. This is possibly the last game of the season for the Juniors.

The men who will go on the floor for the Juniors are: Fraser, Statner, Martin, Jonts, Krassoff, Heney, McKinnon, and Loomis.

The Intermediate B squad will consist of Butler, Ferguson, Grant, Spitzer, Buslin, Milne, Tinkers, and McLean.

JOINT MEETING OF HISTORICAL CLUBS

The Historical Club of the Royal Victoria College and the McGill Historical club will hold a joint meeting in the R. V. C. on Tuesday, February 26th, the subject being two "Eighteenth Century figures." The first paper, on "Queen Caroline" will be read by Miss Joan M. V. Foster, B.A., while E. A. Forsyth will speak on "Sir Robert Walpole."

This is the first time that the two clubs have ever arranged to meet together and all members of both clubs are asked to attend. Miss Foster, one of the Resident Tutors of the R. V. C., has had much experience in historical work and Forsyth can be depended upon to be interesting. This will be the eighth gathering of the McGill Historical Club, being the one postponed from last Tuesday.

Into a classy squad of basketballers and have been depended upon for players by the senior team all season. They have shown steady improvement since the first of the year and are going to be a tough bunch to overcome. Westmount too have a strong team composed of men who have been playing together for five years, and which at present is leading the league. Intermediates will start James and Connor as forwards; Koff at centre, Swartzman and Snyder on defence, with Greene and Jehu subbing.

This game will start at three and will be handled by Mr. Corriveau. The senior fixture starts at four-fifteen.

Following is the probable line-up of the senior teams:—

McGill	Queen's
Forwards	Haslam
Mendelsolm
Philpotts
Centre	Jones
Manson
Guards	Hunter
Blumenstein
Hannon

Quackenbush Thomas
Subs.

TRI-COLOUR STRONG

Red and White Out to Avenge Defeat Sustained in Kingston

Tonight at the Mount Royal Arena, the last scheduled inter-collegiate hockey game of the season will be staged when the Tricolour sextette from the Limestone City hooks up with Coach Shaughnessy's puck chasers at 8.15.

It will be the first time this season that local hockey fans will have the opportunity of seeing Queen's in action against the Red and White sextette and the game promises to be an exciting one.

It will be remembered that the Presbyterians won in Kingston by the narrow margin of one goal and the McGill hockeyists are out to avenge the defeat sustained at the Limestone City.

Queen's are a hard bunch to beat and showed that they have lots of ability by coming from behind in the last five minutes of play to score two goals in the first tilt but tonight they are playing on strange ice and should have considerable difficulty in trying to take a fall out of the home sextette.

With the advantage of playing on local ice and with the fans' support McGill are out to defeat the tricolour crew and regain the laurels lost at Kingston.

The rooters' band will be out in force and a large turnout of students is looked for to help the team along. Queen's have undoubtedly shown that they have a great deal of playing ability but they will be forced to extend themselves tonight when they meet the college six.

Both teams are almost evenly matched, with the Presbyterians having an edge on individual play while McGill has a slight advantage in combination. In goal for Queen's Quinn is a stonewall and turned in a remarkable game at Kingston.

On the defense Smith and Reynolds are a pair who can give a good account of themselves while Reynolds is a flashy skater and a good stickler.

Lindsay at centre has plenty of speed, and is a dangerous man on the offensive.

The wings will be held down by Brown and Boucher. Boucher is a hefty opponent and is a hard man to run up against while Brown plays a consistent game and shows ability as a backchecker. Legon and McDonald are a reliable pair of substitutes with lots of speed. On the whole, the team which Queen's are sending is a competent one and is qualified to maintain a hot pace all evening.

The Red and White line-up will consist of practically the same team as that which went up against St. Ann's on Thursday night. Jerry Reid will guard the nets with Dempsey and McMahon assisting him on the defense. McMahon has been turning in a good game lately and has been showing flashes of brilliant stickhandling while Dempsey, the captain, is a reliable and consistent player.

McGill will play centre position as usual with Dineen and Glennie supporting him on the wings. The forward line is good but their combination has fallen off in recent games. Glennie, in particular, is playing good hockey and his stickhandling has greatly improved.

As substitutes Bell, Wyse and McNaughton will be used. Bill Wyse is a steady player and turns in a good game. Bobby Bell has not been playing up to form and does not seem to have struck his stride.

Altogether the game tonight should be an exciting affair and from advance indications the outcome of the struggle is doubtful, neither team having any appreciable advantage.

BASKETBALL UNION MEETS HERE TODAY

Rotary Schedule for Games to be Arranged

The annual meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Basketball Union takes place this morning at 10 o'clock in the McGill Union. Representatives from McGill, Queen's, and Toronto will be present. There will be the annual election of officers, and other important business will be transacted.

The chief matter to be arranged at the meeting is a new Constitution for the Basketball Union. Connected with this Constitution will be a permanent schedule for the intercollegiate basketball games. This has concerned McGill very much in the past, and the new plan should be a welcome one. Hitherto, all the basketball games were arranged in accordance with the Hockey schedule. There were many inconveniences, as the games were not known very far in advance. Thus no arrangements could be made for games with teams from outside colleges such as Dartmouth and Vermont. The idea of the executive is to fix a rotary schedule like that used for the football games, and in that way, make the dates for the games definite and convenient.

The present officials of the Union are as follows:—
President.—Manson, McGill.
Vice-President.—Jones, Queen's.
Secretary-Treasurer.—Clark, Varsity.

Professor Williams Lectured on Alexander Hamilton

In his first lecture on "Makers of American History," Professor Basil Williams on Thursday last urged Canadians to study carefully the early history of the United States in order to avoid some of the mistakes of that country.

Alexander Hamilton was the subject of the first lecture. One of the real makers of the American constitution, he was a very important figure in the early days of the republic. His early life and struggles, and his trade policy were briefly reviewed by the speaker.

If Hamilton was the precursor of what is now the settled American policy, he at least showed no ignorance of European affairs, as several politicians in his country did. He never allowed the fundamental ties existing between Britain and the United States, the two greatest liberty-loving nations, to fall into obscurity, and his admiration for the freedom and stability of British institutions was unbounded. Nevertheless he would have as little to do with caprices of England as with any other country. Had Hamilton not done what he did, there might have been no foundation on which great Americans could build.

GOING TO COLLEGE

Some time during one's course in an institution of so-called higher learning the question as to what it all is about comes home for answer.

College, as we have so often been told, is not important for the courses it has to offer rather because it teaches men and women to think.

This thought may take the form of stirring the individual to follow more closely the trend of present day politics after he has become familiar with what has preceded his day in the history of the world. He may have delved into science and found that the theories of electrons and of the various other phenomena of chemistry and physics hold a strong fascination for him. Medicine, with its opportunity for giving practical aid to humanity will perhaps decide the student to go on for a medical course.

But college in its presentation of so many fields of activity does a larger service to its students than merely pointing the way to the life. In the task of earning the living which the world expects them to get, college generates a sympathy with other lines of work than our own that makes for a more tolerant world. When education has become more general there will be less antagonism that implies atrocities like Ku Klux Klan, that makes the divisions of religious belief of more value than the search after God. Going to college helps bring about a larger interest in one's fellow men which is one of the ways in which the hurrying, grasping spirit of the mechanical age can be neutralized.

Following the philosophy of Ruskin, "There is no wealth but life," the world, in that great future time which is named the millennium, may reach that golden age when the truth of this precept may be realized and adhered to. Then a realization of the shortness of life will cause us to do away with much of the clap-trap with which we while away so much of our time here below. Life itself, the manufacture of souls of good quality will be the largest vocation and college will have materially helped bring about that end.

DR. L. V. KING HONORED BY SCIENTISTS

Elected Member Royal Society of London

COVETED AWARD

Physical Society Sends Congratulations to Physics Professor

That a cablegram has just been received from London, announcing the election to the Royal Society of Dr. Louis V. King, Macdonald Professor of Physics, was the communication made by Dr. A. S. Eve, director of the Physics Building, to the Physical Society assembled in the lecture theatre of the Physics Building yesterday afternoon.

Dr. King, said the speaker, is the third bona fide McGill student to receive this very high honor which is bestowed upon him in recognition of his distinction in the realm of physics. McGill itself is honored by this election which raises to seven the number of McGill professors who hold membership in this select society of eminent scientists.

The Physical Society met for a one-hour session given over to an exposition of "Experiments and New Apparatus" for which Dr. Eve and Mr. Taylor acted as demonstrators. The Department of Physics has recently made the acquisition of new and valuable apparatus from Germany. In which transaction McGill was favored by the depreciation of the German currency. "In the purchase of laboratory apparatus," said Dr. Eve, "Canada, Great Britain and U. S. are favored in the order named, and while French made goods are very desirable they are difficult to obtain. The German made goods still finding a wide market."

The first experiment performed, for which no exhaustive explanation was given, was conducted to show the remarkable phenomena of the bulging and swaying of the filaments of carbon lamps when a negatively charged body approaches, the exterior of the bulb.

A catalytic lamp such as used during the war by aeronautical forces for keeping motors warm, was the next exhibit. This particular lamp was sent to McGill by Col. Steadman who has done considerable research in the problem of winter flying in Canada.

How the hydrophones used on submarines during the war were able to detect their presence and direction of alien craft was shown by the receipt of action of two drums separated by some fifteen feet, when the other was struck. The angle which the one made with the other was a determining factor in this experiment.

A set of mounted turning forks were made to exemplify the combination of sounds and the consequent production of additional sounds to the original omitted by the forks.

A noteworthy addition to the collection, is an instrument consisting of a pivoted arm moving on a graduated scale which indicates the attractiveness of magnetized bodies. The little instrument greatly simplifies the experimental proof of the law of inverse squares. Another instrument shows remarkably well the refraction of rays of light in passing from air to water and vice-versa. The existence of critical angles is clearly shown by this mechanism.

A rather insignificant looking little tube containing a small amount of water, converts by electrolysis the liquid into its constituent elements hydrogen and oxygen. When connected to the platinum poles at the other end to that used for the preceding process, the gases recombine with a flash.

Wheatstone's Kaleidoscope placed in the path of a beam of light, shows clearly the various designs traced by the tips of rods fixed at one end and caused to vibrate. A new and improved fire syringe with a removable end is likewise a recent acquisition as are also a critical temperature tube and a loud speaker. Crossed Spectra Gratings provided a beautiful exhibition of color phenomena.

The meeting was under the presidency of Dr. Maas, and Miss A. J. McPherson, secretary of the Physical Society, read the minutes of the last meeting, at which was discussed the fluorescence of plants.

PRELIMINARY SKIRMISH

The great Harvard halfback was a special guest of honor at the enemy training table before the big game. "How would you like your meat, Sir?" asked the waiter of one of the enemy.

"Raw," rumbled the giant guard. "And you, Sir?" queried the waiter of another of the enemy.

"Red, raw meat for me," bellowed the huge tackle.

"How about you, Sir?" said the waiter to the man at our hero's left.

"Bloody, red, raw meat," roared the third, and scowled at the guest of honor.

There was silence as the question was put to the great Harvard back.

"Aw, blazes," he thundered, "drive in your cow." "I'll cut off my own

Mlle. TOUREN VISITS AMERICAN COLLEGE

Mlle. Lucie Touren of the French Department left Montreal on Friday for Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, where she expects to stay until Thursday.

The purpose for this visit is to arouse enthusiasm for French at Wilson College, and the fact that Mlle. Touren was specially requested to go, by some American students who attended McGill French Summer School testifies to her popularity.

There is no same interest in French at most of the American Universities as is manifested at McGill, but those who visited Mlle. Touren feel confident that she will be very influential in the interesting students at Wilson College in the French language.

Mlle. Touren will explain the nature of the McGill French Summer School. The prospectus for next summer's course has just been issued and the session promises to be both a pleasant and a profitable one. This will be the eighth session and will last from June 26th to July 21st. Information about it may be obtained from any member of the French Department.

McGILL DELEGATES AT FOOTBALL UNION

The Intercollegiate Football Union is holding its annual meeting today at Hart House, Toronto. Major Stuart Forbes, Athletic Manager for McGill, and Doug MacGregor, the Captain of last year's senior rugby team, left last night for Toronto to attend.

The meetings of the Rugby Football Union in the past have been very important, and its decisions have been watched for with interest by the students of McGill and other Canadian Universities. The Union fixes the rules for Intercollegiate Rugby Football, although Inter-Provincial rules are also followed by certain teams. Results from this assembly should be of considerable interest.

"PEACE, FOOL!"

He was waiting in the office when we came back. He was an old man with long hair and he mumbled. But he spoke American.

"I was waiting," he said. "They told me you had a class."

"Quite true," we were cheerful, "but the professor cut."

"When will you mob him?" he asked, interested. It was then that we put him down as an idiot.

"Why should we mob him?"

"We used to." He seemed to enjoy the memory, for his old gums showed slightly. And then it was our turn to be polite as we asked just when and where.

"In Paris," he said, "a few hundred years ago."—He was a genial liar. There was a pause. He broke it quietly.

"The Employment Office sent me down here. I was looking for a job." Luckily it is possible to be business-like even with an idiot and a liar, so we asked him his name.

"The Pilgrim of Infinity will do," he said. And in truth he looked weak.

"Profession?"

"Thinking."

It hardly sounded like a compliment from the office but we tried again with "Expert in anything?"

"In Universals."

"The efficiency method was getting us nowhere, so we shifted to cordiality and asked him 'had he been in town long?'"

"A few days," was the reply, almost an eager one. "It's been very interesting. I've been talking to several students." (The word sounded a little odd, but he used it quite calmly.) "And they're a curious herd!" he continued. "Very prepositional."

We waited.

"They're all 'out for something or on something. One was out for hockey, another was on the 'Dean's List', another on 'probation' and a profane young man swore he was on 'the skids.'"

"That was the only time we laughed. 'But weren't you 'on' anything in Paris?' we had to ask."

His reply was rather chilling: "On my own," he said.

"Or out for anything?"

"For myself—and knowledge," he added, but it was no afterthought. "We were all of us seeking learning—like Paracelsus."

We had to remind him that all this had been changed. "There's more than just book-learning in a college," we pointed out. "You meet people—see life."

He sneered something about that, and then: "It will change back," he said. "History repeats itself. It stutters badly sometimes, but it always repeats itself in the end. More than ever before. And they will come for learning. The town will be silent in the day time with the silence of work. The night will roar with play."

He was obviously beyond himself, and we were angry. "It will not. There are better things to do. What of all the activities? What of—that?" We looked about us happily, but he lost our note of pride.

"They will stay just the same," he admitted not gloomily. "But the young men will learn—all the young men who can."

This of course was damned foolishness. There has to be limitation some-

BAND WILL LEAD ROOTERS TONIGHT

Team to Have Great Support at Game

The band has promised to turn out and lead the rooters at the Hockey match to-night. They held a practice last night in the Union and are coming along fine under the leadership of Job Logan. New pieces have been practised and will probably be sprung as a surprise at the game to-night. They should be one of the big features of the encounter.

Although the band will be there strong, to-night, they cannot be expected to fill the whole arena and they must be backed along by the whole college to make them a real Rooters' Band. What the Band lacks in numbers they will make up in noise and if the crowd helps them they should be a real inspiration for McGill to win her last intercollegiate battle of the season.

A good showing was made by the band at the game with Toronto and their absence was very notable at the next two intercollegiate games. The band puts life into the games and if McGill wants a band that can compare with the other colleges she must support it. Those who give their time so McGill can have a Band should be shown that their efforts are appreciated.

The band is now composed of three cornets, two saxophones, a bass horn, trombone, drums, and cymbals. They have been practising faithfully and should make a great showing to-night. If everything shows as much promise as the band McGill should turn out a winner.

where or.... A quarter of each class is on probation now and the Dean's Office is overworked as it is, looking after them. We told him so, but it meant nothing to him.

"Gone," he murmured, "they'll all be gone. I don't know what they are but they'll all be gone, all these little things. They'll have no use. All a university needs is men to teach and room to teach in—and books. The students will come, thousands of them. They will eat where they can, live where they can, work as they choose and stay or go as they like. Some will go. Some will stay and a degree will be an award of honor. It was all better so and it will be so again."

The rest was lost.

"But what of the man on probation? How about hour exams? We need them to keep us up to scratch. You aren't going to abolish all those? We need help. You talk about students! What will happen to us?" We were desperate in the face of this fool.

But he only mumbled something that sounded like "nobody cares."

We didn't really hear so we couldn't hit him. Instead, we showed him the door.

One hundred sixty-eight students in the literary college will be asked to leave school immediately on account of poor scholarship, it was decided last night at a meeting of the Administrative board of the college. This is seven less than at the end of the first semester last year, when 175 students were asked to leave.

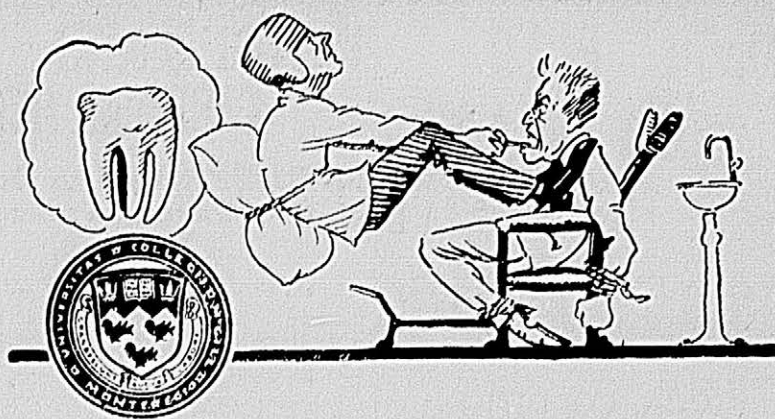

Originally, at the end of the first semester, 189 students were asked to see Dean Wilbur R. Humphreys to give reasons why they should remain in college, and after the Board had considered the various excuses offered it was decided that 168 would be asked to leave.

One hundred sixty-one are included in the "home list," as there are only seven women who will be asked to withdraw from the University.
